History

In 1951, Easterseal's Colorado Rocky Mountain Village (RMV) ran its first summer session with 36 campers attending. Since, RMV Camp as provided enriching, memorable, and life-changing recreational camping services annually for more than 1300 children, adolescents, and adults who live with a wide spectrum of disabilities, both cognitive and physical. RMV is fully accessible and provides a safe, barrier-free environment for its campers to experience all aspects of camp without usual limitations. All programs stress independence and challenge for people with disabilities in a cooperative outdoor living environment. The program is licensed by the Colorado Department of Early Childhood and is accredited by the American Camp Association.
